How to act on a party outing.

First call C.I.E. We go anywhere in Ireland.

If it's a big party we can charter you a train.

Small party, then perhaps a bus. Even eight people get special terms on our regular rail services. Party travel means cheaper travel, so call our Passenger Sales Manager, he'll be happy to act for you. Then sit back and relax.

Passenger Sales Manager, 59 Upr. O'Connell St., Dublin 1.

Q. *What
warms you up and costs only 0.8 pence?*

You're far out if you're thinking of the cost of spirits in great-grandfather's day. But if your thoughts turn to electricity, you're getting warmer. That 0.8d. is the special cheap unit rate for electricity when it is used for central heating. In what else but electricity would you hear of such a fractional figure?

Storage radiators are the 'back-bone' of electric central heating. They're 'charged' only during selected off-peak hours (night and mid-afternoon). They store the heat then let it out in a steady stream during the day. Electric central heating is also cheap to install. In fact, installation is usually less than half the price of comparable installations. It takes only a few days to set up a system in your home. Just a simple matter of wiring.

It takes care of itself. Electric central heating switches itself on and switches itself off. There's no fuel, no fires, no flues, no boilers and no ash. And, of course, electricity doesn't need any fuel storage space. For full details, call to the E.S.B. Showrooms, Patrick St.
